Washington, June 13.—The Senate Sub-Committee on Finance, of which Mr. Jones is chairman, has been wrestling with the woollen goods question for several days. Although there are three proposi tions before the committee, it is believed now that one has been finally hit upon that will be incorpation, cataurh of the stomach dyspen. porated in the bill without further change. The greatest contention has been over paragraph 283, the Jones amendment, wherein goods valued at more than $1 a pound are made the dividing line. Inote than $1 a pound are made the dividing line.

In the Jones amendment women's and children's goods, etc., valued at more than $1 a pound are made dutiable at 50 per cent ad valorem. It has been claimed all the time by such Democratic manufacturers as Walter Stanton, of New-York, that that no goods excepting the very finest could come into this country under it, while on the other hand woollen goods costing less than 60 cents a pound formed the great mass of material that was pur-chased by the poorer classes, and the great bulk of the output of American mills.

objections had been made by countries with which the United States had entered into reciprocal com-tions and machinery. Now, before they have been enabled to reap any appreciable benefits from their investments, the United States is proposing to resimpose a duty on the augar produced by them, the effect of which, the Minister arged, would be to ruin the men who have engaged in the sugar industry in his country upon the faith of the arrangement made by the United States.

But the most serious protest against the pending legislation has been made by Spain. Information of this, it is reported, has been communicated to the State Department by Minister Taylor. It is based, however, upon a misapprehension of the status of the sugar schedule by the Spanish officials. In that country, whenever the Senate gives its consent to a bil, (which can only originate in the other branch of the Cortes) It becomes a law without further action. So, when it was learned in Spain that the Senate had agreed to the sugar schedule the officials assumed that it had become law Immediately the Minister for the Colonies introduced a bill in the Cortes to submit to a uniform all valored duty of 24 per cent all goods imported into Cuba and forto Rico from the United States which are now admitted free under the reciprocal arrangement. School this bill become a law, the following articles, with others now paying no duty, would be subject to a duty of 24 per cent upon entry into either Cuba or Porto Rico.

Marbe, stone, cement, mineral waters, ice, coal, tar, turpentine, petroleum, tiles, fron and steel of all kinds, cotton, cottonseed oil, tallow, books, wood and manufactures thereof, astricultural implements, railrosis materials, meats, except jerked beef, and butter, cheese, fish, grain and almentary products of corn, except meat, fruit, vegetables and hay.

It is believed, however, that when the Spanish authorities learn that the sugar schedule is not yet a law efforts to press the bill referred to will be suppended.

The branch printing effice in the Navy Department is said to have been seriously hampered in its work, which is largely of a technical nature, by the discharge of several experienced men under the reform policy started by Public Printer Benedlet. Among others the foreman has been discharged, and the places of several escal men are said to have been filled by the appointment of incompetent workmen. The Naval hydrographic officers are annoved by eventious delays in the publication of important bulletins, which, it is claimed, must be issued promptly to be of any value to mariners. Hednetions have also been ordered in the other branch printing offices.

An important meeting of various commercial bodies of the United States was begun at the Interstate Commerce Committee this morning.

W. S. Young, of Baltimore, was temporarily called to the chair, after which a permanent organization was effected as follows: President, Alden Speare, of Boston; vice-president, D. R. Francis, of St. Louis; secretary, Edward A. Moseley, of Washinston. E. P. Wilson, of Cincinnati, who issued the call for the convention, stared that its object was to ascertain public sentiment with regard to the amendments to the law to regulate commerce law now pending in Congress, and to arrange for joint and continuous action in securing such amendments to the law to regulate commerce as the conference might support.

The Navy Department received a dispatch this morning from Commander Phillip, of the cruiser New-York, announcing the arrival of that vessel at Kingston, where she would take coal and proceed immediately to New-York. As he made no mention of the condition of affairs at Bluefelds, Secretary Herbert presumes nothing notable has occurred there.

The Chief Justice based his decision spon the provision of the State Constitution, which rives to male citizens the right to vote at all eleche held, would have to be taken as it read, and the Legislature could not extend or abridge this right. The Attorney-General bases his opinion on the constitutional provision giving to the Legislature throughout the building and was unable to find them till he went down into the basement. There he found the colored men, apparently receiving some instructions from John A. Smith, an expolicement and a stanch adherent of Assemblyman Thompson. Kirk told the witnesses to go upstairs, and he says that the expoliceman said to the colored men. "That's all right. I say stay here."

The assistant sergeant-at-arms repeated his request, and Smith, he says, again commanded the dusky witnesses to stay in the basement. There was an interchange of hot language between Smith and Kirk, and the latter went upstairs and informed Captain "Jack" Graham, the sergeant-af-arms. Captain "Jack" maintained his well-known reputation for physical courage by rushing down into the basement, forcing his way into the room where Smith he'd the colored men, and placing the expoliceman under arreat. Smith resisted, and several Democrats railled to his assistance. Captain Graham got his man out, however, and Smith was taken to the City Hall in a patrol wagon, and was charged with intimidating witnesses. When the excitement subskied the committee began the tedious work of examining witnesses.
